Project Summary:

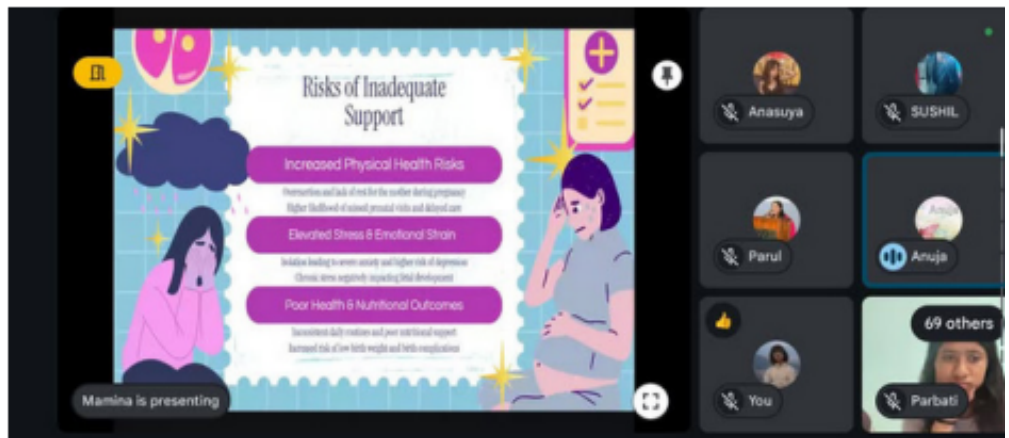

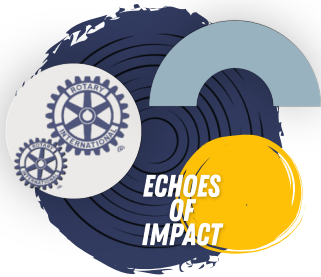

The program was hosted in a simple and interactive format. It featured presentations outlining the crucial influence of fathers in daily life and child development, along with the positive outcomes of supportive care during pregnancy and early childhood. Discussions also focused on how fathers and children can build open, respectful, and friendly relationships. Participants exchanged various ideas and perspectives regarding fatherhood and family bonding, reinforcing that a father serves as a vital source of love, guidance, and emotional connection rather than just a financial provider. Ultimately, the session demonstrated how active family participation leads to better health outcomes and a healthier home environment.
