About 'Zero to Hero: Budget Sprint'

Introduction:

On October 30th a few interact clubs decided to do "Zero to Hero: Budget Sprint" a event about financial knowledge. For a better future in management of money and creating a budget such an event was done. It was an event to enlighten the youth about importance of financial knowledge. Most youths that are interactors and more find it hard to separate such budget which leads to certain problems.

Project summary:

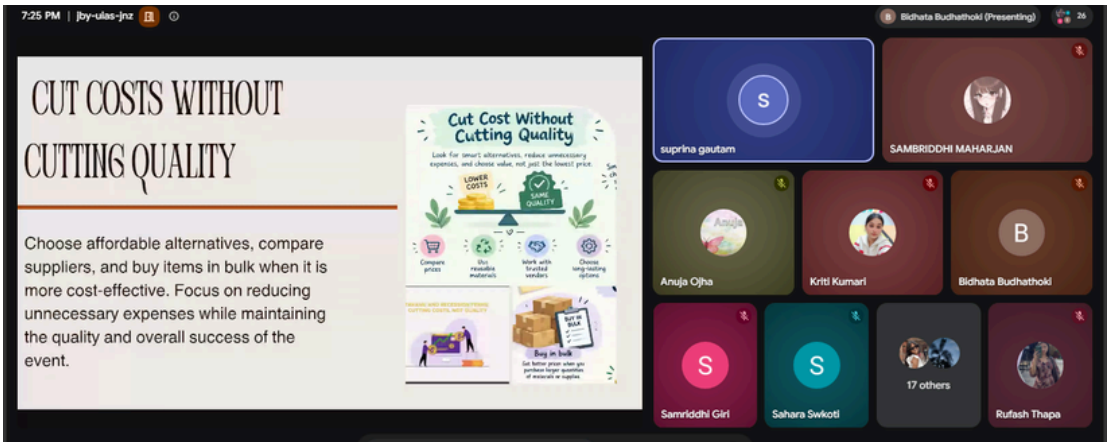

The event started with the presentation about financial knowledge. Then gradually the session had turned very informative with the participants being very engaged in the session. The presenters made sure to make the presentations attractive and mainly informative as per the session. But the presentetive session ended and then the practical session began where 2 participants from each club pitched an idea for a joint project and made a budget as per the thins they had learned. Soon after all the ideas were shown and the questions were asked . The judges voted the best idea and the pitched idea is to be converted into an event in the future. The event was fun informative and very unique. This style of mixing both theory session and practical session was brilliant. The participants were also very active through out the session and it was an overall success.
