The activity aimed to clear unwanted bushes and overgrowth surrounding the plants along the highway divider, contributing to a cleaner and more pleasant environment.

Event Summary

The campaign focused on cleaning the road divider, where plants had been surrounded by unwanted bushes and overgrowth. Interactors worked together to clear the unwanted vegetation around the plants, making the area cleaner, neater, and more presentable. Through their collective efforts, participants contributed towards improving the appearance of the roadside greenery and maintaining a cleaner public space.

The activity was not only about removing unwanted bushes but also about understanding the importance of caring for our surroundings. The plants along the highway divider added greenery to the roadside, and keeping the area clean helped maintain its appearance. Members actively participated in the cleaning process, demonstrating that even small contributions can create a positive difference in public spaces.

The campaign also encouraged a sense of responsibility among Interactors towards their community and environment. Working together for a common purpose strengthened teamwork and reminded members that cleanliness is not only the responsibility of authorities but also of every individual.
